The Credit Review Board (CRB) is an internal advisory committee reporting to the USAID Chief Financial Officer (CFO). Pursuant to the CRB Charter, the CRB has the responsibility to recommend, for the CFO's final determination, the credit subsidy cost of each proposed DCA activity. The Charter further provides that the CRB recommends policies and procedures designed to ensure the financial soundness of all USAID credit programs, including DCA. (OMB Circular A-129) \(Chapter 249\)

credit subsidy/reserve

In accordance with the Credit Reform Act of 1990, a credit subsidy (i.e., a loan loss reserve) must be estimated (under an overall FY appropriation for this purpose) for each Housing Guaranty authorization. OMB Circular No. A-34 (revised annually) outlines the procedures for credit subsidy estimates. For sovereign risk borrowers, the credit subsidy is determined by utilizing an OMB computer software model based on U.S. inter-agency (ICRAS) ratings for country risk. For non-sovereign risk borrowers, the credit subsidy is calculated utilizing a non-sovereign risk software model developed for the Housing Guaranty Program and approved by OMB. This model is based partially on country risk and partially on financial analysis of the borrowers.

A situation in which the revenues an organization generates from its clients cover the full (opportunity) costs of its activities, thus allowing it to continue operating at a stable or growing scale without ongoing support from governments, donor agencies, or charitable organizations. When applied to a microfinance institution (MFI), full financial sustainability requires that the interest and fees the MFI collects on its lending equal or exceed the sum of its operational and financial costs, with the latter evaluated on an opportunity-cost basis. (Chapter 219)

full long-run (opportunity) costs

In the context of this guidance, the financial plus operational costs for an organization to provide a given quantity and quality of services (for example, credit) once the organization has achieved feasible economies of scale and improvements in operational efficiency, with all costs evaluated on an opportunity-cost basis. Used as a basis for estimating the prices that must be charged for services to allow the organization to reach full financial sustainability. In the case of a microfinance institution (MFI) undergoing significant growth and/or improvement in operational efficiency, the full long-run costs of providing credit will typically be less than its currently observed costs. (Chapter 219)

Full Mission

Full Missions conduct USAID's major programs worldwide and manage a program of four or more strategic goal areas. Full Missions usually consist of nine to 15 U.S. Direct-Hire employees, including typically two senior managers and a full complement of program, technical, and administrative staff. (Chapter 102)

full support Mission

Also known as "regional hubs," full support Missions have designated and clear responsibilities for providing support to small and medium Missions in addition to managing their own bilateral program of four or more strategic goal areas. Typically, a full support Mission consists of 16-22 U.S. Direct-Hire employees and provides contract, legal, and financial management support to its in-country program as well as designated small and medium Missions. It will only be located in countries where there is a large USAID in-country program to manage. (Chapter 102)

FTEs may reflect civilian positions that are not necessarily staffed at the time of public announcement, and staffing of FTE positions may fluctuate during a streamlined or standard competition. The staffing and threshold

FTE requirements stated in Circular A-76 reflect the workload performed by these FTE positions, not the workload performed by actual government personnel. FTEs do not include military personnel, uniformed services, or contract support. (Chapter 104)

Second, Supplemental FFA&E are those items listed in 6 FAM 772 Exhibit 772.3B, or others approved by the post and the Washington parent agencies, which may be provided for residential quarters if posts have sufficient funding to procure them and if the post Interagency Housing Board establishes a joint policy that such items will be routinely furnished. Third, Initial FFA&E are those items of basic or supplemental FFA&E provided for new Foreign Service positions. Fourth, Replacement FFA&E are those items of basic or supplemental FFA&E that are not initial FFA&E. (Chapter 535)

Gender is a social construct that refers to relations between and among the sexes, based on their relative roles. It encompasses the economic, political, and socio-cultural attributes, constraints, and opportunities associated with being male or female. As a social construct, gender varies across cultures, is dynamic and open to change over time. Because of the variation in gender across cultures and over time, gender roles should not be assumed but investigated. Note that “gender” is not interchangeable with “women” or “sex.” (Chapters 200-203)

Gender analysis refers to the systematic gathering and analysis of information on gender differences and social relations to identify and understand the different roles, divisions of labor, resources, constraints, needs, opportunities/capacities, and interests of men and women (and girls and boys) in a given context. USAID requires that the findings of a gender analysis are used to inform the design of country strategic plans, Development Objectives, and projects. A gender analysis can be conducted at the macro level, analyzing socio-cultural, economic, health, or demographic trends and legal policies and practices at the national or regional level; and/or at the micro level, examining gender relations, roles, and dynamics at the community or household level within the context provided by the macro analysis. Taking a macro or micro focus depends on the purpose for which the analysis is being undertaken. For example, a gender analysis conducted to inform a country strategic plan will most likely assess the issues from a broader, more macro level, whereas a gender analysis conducted for the design of a project/activity, may look at the issues from both a macro and micro perspective. (Chapter 200) gender assessment Gender assessment involves carrying out a review, from a gender perspective, of an organization's programs and its ability to monitor and respond to gender issues in both technical programming and institutional policies and practices. A gender assessment is a flexible tool, based on the needs of the Mission, and may also include a gender analysis at the country level. If a gender analysis is included in a gender assessment, this meets the ADS requirements. Findings from a gender assessment may be used, for example, to inform a country strategic plan or a Development Objective and/or develop a Mission Gender Plan of Action or a Mission Order on gender. (Chapter 200)

A broad concept and a goal for development. It is achieved when men and women have equal rights, freedoms, conditions, and opportunities for realizing their full potential and for contributing to and benefiting from economic, social, cultural, and political development. It means society values men and women equally for their similarities and the diverse roles they play. It signifies the outcomes that result from gender equity strategies and processes. (Chapters 200-203)

gender equity

The process of being fair to women and men. To ensure fairness, measures must often be available to compensate for historical and social disadvantages that prevent women and men from otherwise operating on a level playing field. Equity leads to equality. (Chapters 200-203) gender integration Involves identifying and then addressing gender differences during strategic planning, project design, implementation, and monitoring and evaluation. Since the roles and relations of power between men and women affect how a project is implemented, it is essential that USAID staff address these issues on an ongoing basis. USAID uses the term gender integration in planning and programming. (Chapter 200)

Our definition includes the principal codes, which are defined in 22 CFR 228.03, to identify the source, origin, and nationality of commodities and services financed by USAID. (Chapter 260)

guidance

Guidance is a general term that includes policy directives and required procedures, rules, regulations, advice, and other information relevant to the conduct of USAID business. The critical distinction is between mandatory and non-mandatory guidance, as defined below. A particular document may contain both mandatory and non-mandatory guidance.

a. mandatory guidance

Guidance specifying required actions and behavior on the part of Agency employees and operating units, signified by phrases like "must," "must not," "is required," or the equivalent. Employees are held accountable for adherence to mandatory guidance, and must comply with it unless an exception is made in accordance with established procedures. Policy directives – mandatory guidance contained in documents prepared according to Automated Directives System (ADS) procedures – are clearly identified as mandatory. A document written before the initiation of the ADS may also contain mandatory guidance that remains in force, in which case it is classified as an internal mandatory reference.

b. non-mandatory guidance

Guidance intended to assist employees in carrying out their duties, but does not specify required actions and behavior. Employees are strongly encouraged to review and consider such guidance. (Chapter 501)

Impact evaluations in which comparisons are made between beneficiaries that are randomly assigned to either a treatment or a control group provide the strongest evidence of a relationship between the intervention under study and the outcome measured. Impact evaluations measure the change in a development outcome that is attributable to a defined intervention. (Chapter 200)

objectivity

Involves two distinct elements, presentation and substance.

1. "Objectivity" includes whether disseminated information is being presented in an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased manner. This involves whether the information is presented within a proper context. Sometimes, in disseminating certain types of information to the public, other information must also be disseminated in order to ensure an accurate, clear, complete, and unbiased presentation. Also, the agency needs to identify the sources of the disseminated information (to the extent possible, consistent with confidentiality protections) and, in a scientific or statistical context, the supporting data and models, so that the public can assess for itself whether there may be some reason to question the objectivity of the sources. Where appropriate, supporting data should have full, accurate, transparent documentation, and error sources affecting data quality should be identified and disclosed to users.

2. In addition, "objectivity" involves a focus on ensuring accurate, reliable, and unbiased information. In a scientific or statistical context, the original or supporting data must be generated, and the analytical results must be developed, using sound statistical and research methods.

1. If the results have been subject to formal, independent, external peer review, the information can generally be considered of acceptable objectivity.

2. In those situations involving influential scientific or statistical information, the results must be capable of being substantially reproduced, if the original or supporting data are independently analyzed using the same models. Reproducibility does not mean that the original or supporting data have to be capable of being replicated through new experiments, samples, or tests.

3. Making the data and models publicly available will assist in determining whether analytical results are capable of being substantially reproduced. However, these guidelines do not alter the otherwise applicable standards and procedures for determining when and how information is disclosed. Thus, the objectivity standard does not override other compelling interests, such as privacy, trade secret, and other confidentiality protections. (Chapter 578)

This is primarily used for budget planning and tracking. Program Areas can be funded by more than one appropriation account. (Chapters 200-203)

program assistance

Program assistance is also known as Non-project Assistance. The distinguishing feature of program assistance is the manner in which USAID resources are provided. Under this mode, USAID provides a generalized resource transfer, in the form of foreign exchange or commodities, to the recipient government. This is in contrast to other types of assistance in which USAID finances specific inputs, such as technical assistance, training, equipment, vehicles, or capital construction. (This distinction parallels distinctions in law and previous USAID usage between project and non-project assistance.) (Chapters 200-203)

Program Element

Program Elements are categories in the Foreign Assistance Standardized Program Structure that reflect the different components of a Program Area. This is primarily used for budget planning and tracking. (Chapters 200-203)

The project authorization gives substantive approval for a project to move from the planning stage to implementation. It does not reserve or commit funds. The authorization approves the project design, sets out the basic scope of the design and its duration, defines certain fundamental terms and conditions of the assistance, and approves an overall total budget level for the project. Waivers also will be included and documented in the authorization. (Chapters 200-203)

project design concept paper

The first stage of the project design process, the concept paper provides a summary of a proposed project that can be reviewed by Mission management to assess strategic fit, plausibility of success, underlying assumptions, and manageable interest, among other

reasonable accommodation

Any change in the work environment or application process that enables a person with a disability to enjoy equal employment opportunities. There are three general categories of reasonable accommodations: (1) changes to a job application process to permit people with disabilities to be considered for jobs; (2) changes that enable people with disabilities to perform the essential functions of a job; and (3) changes that give people with disabilities equal access to the benefits and privileges of employment.

Some examples of reasonable accommodation include:

- Making existing facilities readily accessible,
- Job restructuring,
- Modifying work schedules,
- Acquiring or modifying equipment or devices,
- Providing qualified readers or interpreters, or
- Reassignment to a funded, vacant position.

Reassignment is the accommodation of last resort. When a determination is made that there is no reasonable accommodation that allows the employee to perform the essential function of his or her current position or if the only effective accommodation in that position causes undue hardship, the Agency must consider reassignment. The Agency must search for a vacant, funded position that the employee qualifies for and may perform the essential functions of the position with or without reasonable accommodation. A vacant position is one that (1) is available when the employee asks for the reasonable accommodation or (2) will become available within a reasonable amount of time. A "reasonable amount of time" is determined on a case-by-case basis considering relevant facts, such as whether it is anticipated that an appropriate position will become vacant within a short period of time.

In the absence of a position at the same grade level, the Agency must offer a reassignment to a vacant position, for which the individual is qualified, at the highest available grade level below the employee's current grade or level. - c. Special-Sensitive Position: Any position in USAID, the duties of which are determined to be at a level higher than "critical sensitive" because of the greater degree of damage that an individual by virtue of occupancy of the position could effect to the national security, or because the duties may entail access to sensitive compartmented information. An illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves:

(1) Inpatient care (i.e., an overnight stay) in a hospital, hospice, or residential medical care facility, including any period of incapacity or any subsequent treatment in connection with such inpatient care; or

(2) Continuing treatment by a health care provider that includes (but is not limited to) examinations to determine if there is a serious health condition and evaluations of such conditions if the examinations or evaluations determine that a serious health condition exists. Continuing treatment by a health care provider may include one or more of the following:

(A) A period of incapacity of more than 3 consecutive calendar days, including any subsequent treatment or period of incapacity relating to the same condition, that also involves:

(1) Treatment two or more times by a health care provider, by a health care provider under the direct supervision of the affected individual's health care provider, or by a provider of health care services under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider; or

(B) Any period of incapacity due to pregnancy, or for prenatal care, even if the affected individual does not receive active treatment from a health care provider during the period of incapacity or the period of incapacity does not last more than three consecutive calendar days.

(C) Any period of incapacity or treatment for such incapacity due to a chronic serious health condition that:

(1) Requires periodic visits for treatment by a health care provider under the direct supervision of the affected individual's health care provider,

(2) Continues over an extended period of time (including recurring episodes of a single underlying condition); and

(3) May cause episodic rather than a continuing period of incapacity (e.g., asthma, diabetes, epilepsy, etc.). The condition is covered even if the affected individual does not receive active treatment from a health care provider during the period of incapacity or the period of incapacity does not last more than 3 consecutive calendar days.

(D) A period of incapacity which is permanent or long-term due to a condition for which treatment may not be effective. The affected individual must be under the continuing supervision of, but need not be receiving active treatment by, a health care provider (e.g., Alzheimer's, severe stroke, or terminal stages of a disease).

(E) Any period of absence to receive multiple treatments (including any period of recovery) by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider, either for restorative surgery after an accident or other injury or for a condition that would likely result in a period of incapacity or more than 3 consecutive calendar days in the absence of medical intervention or treatment (e.g., chemotherapy/radiation for cancer, physical therapy for severe arthritis, dialysis for kidney disease.)

(1) (Serious health condition does not include routine physical, eye, or dental examinations; a regimen of continuing treatment that includes the taking of over-the-counter medications, bed-rest, exercise, and other similar activities that can be initiated without a visit to the health care provider; a condition for which cosmetic treatments are administered, unless inpatient hospital care is required or unless complications develop; or an absence because of an employee's use of an illegal substance, unless the employee is receiving treatment for substance abuse by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services on referral by a health care provider. Ordinarily, unless complications arise, the common cold, the flu, earaches, upset stomach, minor ulcers, headaches (other than migraines), routine dental or orthodontia problems, and periodontal disease are not serious health conditions. Allergies, restorative dental or plastic surgery after an injury, removal of cancerous growth, or mental illness resulting from stress may be serious health conditions only if such conditions require inpatient care or continuing treatment by a health care provider.) settle

See 6 FAM 311.3. (Chapter 521)

severable/non-severable

A contract that, if terminated, still provides a benefit from the amounts paid/obligated is considered to be severable. For example, an organization has a service contract to wash 1,000 windows during the next 6 months. If the contract is terminated after only 10 windows are washed, the organization has the benefit of 10 clean windows (and presumably would not have to pay for the windows that were not washed). This contract would be considered to be severable. If the contract is for a study, however, terminating the contract before the study is completed leaves nothing – so the contract would be considered to be non-severable. Some contracts may be severable in part. For example, if you sign a contract with a company which covers the purchase of 20 LAN servers and maintenance of the servers for 18 months, the portion of the contract relating to the purchase would be considered to be non-severable while the portion relating to maintenance would be severable. (FAM06-0700) (Chapter 535)
